Program Overview

What is the LEGO® Education Master Educator Program?

The LEGO Education Master Educator Program, a volunteer ambassador program, is a community of early learning through secondary educators who use LEGO Education solutions in their classrooms to inspire future generations. Master Educators embody the mission of LEGO Education to inspire and develop the builders of tomorrow by enabling every student to succeed.

They share their hands-on LEGO learning experiences with others and they want to be a part of a like-minded community to learn from one another.

Master Educators are given opportunities to provide valuable feedback to LEGO Education with the intent to advance hands-on learning, to participate in LEGO Education or industry events with the team, to join discussions where they are invited to share best practices, and more!

Who should apply?

We are looking for early learning to secondary school/high school educators* who currently use LEGO Education solutions in their everyday teaching. They are fully aligned to the mission of LEGO Education and want to share their experiences and expertise with others.

Please note that to avoid a potential conflict of interest, individuals with school or district-wide purchasing or procurement authority are not eligible to participate in the LEGO Education Master Educator Program. Refer to the Participation Agreement on page 8 for more details.

If accepted into the program, the applicant has an obligation to check with their school district purchasing policies and affirm in the Participation Agreement that they don't have the authority to make high level purchasing decisions on behalf of his or her school or district.

*This includes educators, administrators and learning specialists who are actively working in the classroom.

What can I expect as a LEGO® Education Master Educator?

Some of the potential unique opportunities that Master Educators have include:

- Best practice sharing with fellow participants around the world
- Feedback sessions with the LEGO Education team
- Web and online recognition
- A digital Master Educator badge
- Insider news about hands-on LEGO learning programs and solutions
- Written verification for participating in Professional Development may be provided

What is expected of me as a Master Educator?

Master Educators will be asked to contribute to online sessions with the LEGO Education team to share relevant experiences, provide feedback, and connect with other Master Educators in the program. Master Educators must be active participants in the digital LEGO Education community.

Please note that Master Educators must meet the above participation requirements to remain in the program. Master Educators could also be invited to participate in any of the following activities as needed and as willing:

- Raise on-going awareness of LEGO Education in their online and in-person networks
- Be part of the LEGO Education team at events*
- Provide feedback to curriculum, product development and research teams

If selected, applicants will be required to complete the LEGO Education Master Educator Participation Agreement with guidelines for program participation and may also be subject to a Criminal Background Check.
